September 1930 George Coles of 17 Riley Street, Bacup saves the mill from being flooded by braving the torrential waters of the River Irwell, during one of the worst floods to hit Bacup. He had noticed water flowing over the top of the weir and went across to raise the sluice gates, but owing to the great force of the water he had to make a second trip, with the aid of a rope tied to himself by P.C Walsh. After strenuous energy he managed to open the sluice gates and saved the mill from being flooded. The Ghost of Forest Mill Mr Jack Edge stated that he had seen the ghost of a old woman operative, who had supposedly died in the mill at the age of ninety and it was believed her name was Agnes, she was supposed to have left money in the mill.
